

Description of the major accomplishment

After graduating with honours in International Relations and Human Rights and International Cooperation and Development, I began working in the field of international cooperation with an Italian NGO as programme manager collaborating in a dissimilar bilateral project (Italy-Angola). Specifically, I worked on development and cooperation projects in Africa. While working, I returned to my studies and obtained a scholarship at IUAV to carry out my PhD in Regional Planning and Public Policy. Migration studies applied to urban planning began to be my focus of interests, hybridising my background of a political science/human rights approach with urban planning. I then decided to focus on academic life, continuing to be a consultant in the field of international cooperation as well as starting a career as policy consultant for some municipalities as well as community organisations and NGOs. As part of my PhD training, I benefited from three important periods as visiting researcher and research fellow at: Witwatersrand University in Johannesburg, Mines Paris Tech in Paris and The Open University in Milton Keynes (UK) and was hosted by excellent research groups, giving me the opportunity to delve into different disciplines like Migration and Displacement, Sociology of Innovation and Social Movements and Citizenship, thus developing my international background. After finishing my PhD, I began collaborating as a research fellow with IUAV, based at the Social and Spatial Inclusion of International Migrants Unesco Chair. Here I have been involved in university teaching, at both MA and undergraduate levels. I was member of the steering and organising committee of different international conferences and seminars. For the last three years I have been exposed to different disciplines and areas of expertise thanks to participation in various national and international networks: I was among the founders of a national network dedicated to urban studies (Tracce Urbane), among the founders of an international network of 28 different universities and research centres in and outside of Europe (Urban ID Network). I am a member of ISA-RC21. In the last two years, I have reinforced my independent thinking thanks to some important institutional responsibilities that I have been given inside and outside of academia. In Italy I coordinated a Winter School dedicated to policy officers dealing with migration in small-size cities. I founded at IUAV the first Italian Master Course (URISE) dedicated to urban regeneration and social innovation, that I'm now coordinating. Outside academia, since 2013, I have worked as city council representative in Padua. In 2012 I was among the founders of a social enterprise (CO+/EST, today recognized as a University Spin Off) working in the field of urban regeneration and social innovation. My effort is to act as a bridge builder between academia and the policy sector, dealing with knowledge transfer, public sector innovation and social innovation mainly in the field of urban regeneration.
